SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

Defendant's argument is that, as a matter of law, an insurance agent cannot be sued for acts or injuries his client sustains. Defendant's argument is based on cases where the agent is a captive agent working solely on behalf of the insurer. These arguments do not apply where the agent is acting or failing to act on behalf of the insured/customer, or where the agent is a dual agent and breaches his duties to the customer. Mr. Khalaf was at all times acting as Mrs. Awad's agent, which makes defendant's removal and argument erroneous.

I.

INTRODUCTION

Defendant Raad Khalaf is a named defendant in only the Third Cause of Action For Negligence. The allegations of this cause of action allege without contradiction that Khalaf

1 “agreed to represent and assist plaintiff” and “act as her agent in obtaining and applying for
2 insurance coverages.” (Complaint ¶16.) In ¶17 plaintiff alleges that: “In reliance upon
3 defendant’s status as her agent” plaintiff requested Khalaf’s assistance in obtaining insurance
4 coverage in adding a rider to her policy insuring a substantial amount of jewelry. He obtained the
5 rider, there is no allegation that Khalaf failed to procure coverage, nor is there any allegation that
6 he acted as an employee of Liberty Mutual. The complaint only alleges that he engaged in acts
7 that were detrimental to his principal, Mrs. Awad.

8 Paragraph 18 alleges that Khalaf engaged in acts that were negligent toward his principal,
9 Mrs. Awad and that his acts needlessly caused her injury. These facts, accepted as true for 10 purposes of this motion, show that Mr. Khalaf acted against his principal (Mrs. Awad) had secret
11 conversations in application process about Mrs. Awad that were “against plaintiff’s interests” by 12 telling Liberty Mutual that “plaintiff didn’t have any of the jewelry she was insuring and that the 13 jewelry was stolen at some earlier date.” More importantly, Khalaf, as plaintiff’s agent, did not 14 advise plaintiff that he had any concerns about plaintiff or her jewelry or that she should provide 15 proof of the jewelry’s existence, bring the jewelry to him for inspection or get another agent to 16 represent her interests. His actions were in conflict with his representation of her.

17 The complaint is clear that Khalaf is alleged to be Mrs. Awad’s agent. Defendant’s motion
18 is based entirely on cases and law that deal with circumstances where the agent was acting solely 19 as an agent for the insurance company in selling an insurance policy. Those same cases also make 20 it clear that where an agent is a “dual agent” a claim can be stated against the agent, as well as the 21 insurance company. Mr. Khalaf is only alleged to have acted as Mrs. Awad’s agent, not Liberty
22 Mutual’s agent.

23 II.

24 THE BURDEN OF ESTABLISHING PROPER 25 REMOVAL RESTS ON DEFENDANT.

26 Liberty Mutual Fire (LMF) removed this action even though diversity of citizenship does 27 not exist. The provisions of 28 USC §1332 are to be strictly construed against removal and any 28 doubt is resolved in favor of remand. Duncan v. Stuetzle, 76 F.3d 1480 (9th Cir. 1996). The burden of establishing jurisdiction rests with LMF, the party effecting the removal. Emrich v. Touche Ross & Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1195 (9th Cir. 1988).

Further, the “presumptions” on a motion to dismiss a party on the basis of fraudulent joinder are against such a finding. See, Diaz v. Allstate, 185 F.R.D. 581, 586 (C.D. Cal. 1998) and Green v. Amerada Hess Corp., 707 F.2d 201 (5th Cir. 1983).

Defendant LMF must prove that there is absolutely no possibility that plaintiff will be able to establish a cause of action against the non-diverse defendant in state court. See, Kruso v. Int. Telephone & Telegraph, 872 F.2d 1416, 1426 (9th Cir. 1989). This court is not asked to determine if plaintiff will prevail or even whether plaintiff will probably prevail. The only question is whether there is a “possibility” that she might prevail against defendant Khalaf. See, Dodson v. Spiliada Maritime Corp., 951 F.2d 40, 42 (5th Cir. 1992).

III.

PLAINTIFF’S NEGLIGENCE CLAIM AGAINST

HER AGENT IS VIABLE.

Defendant’s motion to dismiss for fraudulent joinder is based entirely on cases where the agent was a captive agent of the insurance and/or was the company’s agent or employee. In Mercado v. Allstate, 340 F.3d 824 (9th Cir. 2003) the plaintiff sued Allstate and Silva Luevano, an Allstate employee (Id. p. 825). The court upheld the dismissal of Luevano based on the allegations that all “pertain to actions she took in her capacity as an Allstate employee.” 340 F.3d at 826. The Mercado decision made careful note that a different result would issue if the employee acts as a “dual agent.”

All of Mercado’s allegations against Luevano pertain to actions she took in her capacity as an Allstate employee. It is well established that, unless an agent or employee acts as a dual agent (a circumstance not present in this case), she cannot be held individually liable as a defendant unless she acts for her own personal advantage.

An employee acts as a “dual agent” by assuming special duties for the benefit of the insured beyond those required by her principal. See Jones v. Grewe, 189 Cal.App.3d 950, 954-55, 234 Cal.Rptr. 717 (1987). Because Luevano did not take on any additional duties for the benefit of Mercado, she was not a dual agent. See, e.g., Charlin v. Allstate Ins. Co., 19 F.Supp.2d 1137, 1140 - 41 (C.D. Cal. 1998) (concluding joinder of an agent was fraudulent because plaintiff failed to establish he was a “dual agent” by acting beyond his capacity for the insurer).

(Emphasis added.)

Defendant's motion presents no evidence that Khalaf was an "employee" of LMF and no evidence is offered to show that he was not acting as Mrs. Awad's agent or a dual agent. LMF simply ignores the allegations that Mr. Khalaf was Mrs. Awad's agent, an allegation that must be accepted as true for purposes of this motion. The "possibility" of an agent/principal relationship takes this case outside the arguments and cases defendant LMF relies upon - "employees" Mercado v. Allstate and "agent" for the company Good v. Prudential, 5 F.Supp. 804 (9th Cir. N.D. Cal. 1998). Good also made it clear that the insurance agent could be sued where he acted in a "dual agent" capacity. 5 F.Supp. at 807. The Good decision also noted that there was no issue of "dual agent" because there was no allegation suggesting it in the complaint:

Mr. Good asserts that the complaint contains allegations that, if proven, establish that Ms. Magid acted as a dual agent. The only such allegation he cites, however, states simply that Defendants had superior knowledge of their insurance products and led him to believe he was acting in his best interests. Complaint at ¶17. Under California law, a "dual agent" theory requires that the insurance agent act on behalf of the insured in some way beyond his or her capacity as an agent for the insurer. An insurance agent cannot be a "dual agent" unless he or she is either an independent broker or has a long-term, special relationship with the insured. Maloney v. Rhode Island Ins. Co., 115 Cal.App.2d 238, 251 P.2d 1027 (1953). Nothing in the complaint indicates that Ms. Magid was an independent broker or that she had a long-term relationship with Mr. Good. Furthermore, Mr. Good alleges that "each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the scope of such agency." Complaint at ¶6. The Court finds, therefore, that Mr. Good has presented no evidence or allegation indicating that Ms. Magid was acting as a dual agent.

Good at 808.

Here, the facts are just the opposite. It is alleged that Mr. Khalaf was acting as "plaintiff's agent" (¶16) and that plaintiff relied upon "defendant's status as her agent" (¶17) and that defendant Khalaf "failed to advise, counsel and protect plaintiff's interests and breached his fiduciary duties to plaintiff" (¶20) by failing to advise plaintiff that Khalaf, as her agent, questioned her possession of the jewelry he was supposed to get insurance for and failed to give her the opportunity to resolve any such concerns by failing to ask her to bring the jewelry to him to resolve the issue or at least tell her that he was reporting these concerns to LMF. His negligence denied plaintiff the chance to resolve this issue before the jewelry was stolen in a burglary of her home and planted the seeds of doubt that caused the claim to be denied.

1 The allegations in the present complaint pertain to Khalaf's actions as Mrs. Awad's agent,
 2 or at least as a "dual agent." As an agent to Mrs. Awad he owed her a duty of loyalty and care.
 3 He breached those duties by failing to disclose to her his concerns about the insured items and his
 4 secret conversations that were not disclosed to plaintiff until after the loss, when it was impossible
 5 to correct his actions.

6 Defendant has failed to bring to this court's attention other cases which hold that a claim
 7 for negligence can be stated against an insurance agent. See, Macey v. Allstate, 200 F.Supp.2d
 8 1116 (N.D. Cal. 2002). In McNeill v. State Farm, 116 Cal.App.4th 597, 603 (2004) the court
 9 rejected the argument that an insurance agent could not be sued along with the insurer:

10 Defendants finally contend that the action was properly dismissed
 11 with respect to Cannon, because only an insurer, not its agent, may liable to 12 the insured on account of the agent's acts within the disclosed scope of 13 employment. The authorities defendants cite reflect that this rule applies to 14 cases involving failure to procure insurance coverage as requested or agreed
 15 upon. (Lippert v. Bailey (1966) 241 Cal.App.2d 376, 378-379, 381 - 382, 50
 16 Cal.Rptr. 478; Gasnik v. State Farm Ins. Co. (E.D. Cal. 1992) 825 F.Supp.
 17 245, 248 - 249.) But the present cause of action charges intentional
 18 misrepresentation, or fraud. Like other agents, an insurance company's may 19 be personally responsible when they commit that tort. (2 Witkin, Summary
 20 of Cal. Law (9th ed. 1987) Agency and Employment, §149, pp. 144 - 145; 1
 21 Croskey et al., Cal. Practice Guide: Insurance Litigation (Rutter 2003) § 2:54, 22 p. 2 - 14.3; cf. Ins. Code, §780.) We disagree with the contrary view of Good
 23 v. Prudential Ins. Co. Of America (N.D.Cal. 1998) 5 F.Supp.2d 804, 807.
 24 Moreover, the present complaint's indication of a long-term relationship
 25 between Cannon and plaintiff supports an exception to Good by its own
 26 terms. (Id. at p. 808; cf. Macey v. Allstate Property and Cas. Ins. Co. (N.D.
 27 Cal. 2002) 220 F.Supp.2d 1116.)

(Emphasis added.)

20 Clearly, California state law allows an agent to be sued for ordinary torts including 21 negligence. Similarly, Mr. Khalaf is not being sued for a failure to obtain the requested insurance,
 22 he is being sued for actions that breached his obligations to act in plaintiff's best interests as her
 23 agent, as well as acts which caused her injury that could have been avoided if he had reasonably
 24 advised her of his concerns.

25 In Quiroz v. Valley Forge Insurance 2005 WL 1806366 (N.D.Cal.), the court rejected the 26 fraudulent joinder argument where the complaint raised the mere potential for dual agent liability
 27 or the special duty exception:

28 ///

1 It is generally true in California that an agent, when acting in the
2 name of a disclosed principal, is not personally liable for negligence
3 committed within the scope of his or her employment. See Lippert, 241
4 Cal.App.2d at 382, 50 Cal.Rptr. 478. However, as Quiroz has correctly
5 noted, California courts have recognized two separate “lines of exception” to 6 the general Lippert rule: (1) the dual agency exception and (2) the “special
7 duty” exception. See, Macey v. Allstate Property and Casualty Insurance
8 Co., 220 F.Supp.2d 1116, 1120 (N.D.Cal.2002). Since Valley Forge is the 9 removing party, it bears a heavy burden of conclusively establishing that 10 neither exception applies here.

11 Similarly, LMF’s moving papers do not negate the “dual agent” exception, the special duty
12 exception nor the allegations that Khalaf was acting solely as plaintiff’s agent. Defendant’s
13 motion is based entirely on the legal argument that no claim can be stated if Mr. Khalaf was acting
14 as an agent for LMF. The law is clear that such a claim can be made on the dual agent theory and 15 the complaint raises this possibility as well as the possibility that Mr. Khalaf was acting solely as 16 plaintiff’s agent.

17 CONCLUSION.

18 Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss Mr. Khalaf is not well taken and should be denied.
19 Defendant has failed to establish that no right to relief is available against Mr. Khalaf under 20 California law. Accordingly, plaintiff asks that defendant’s motion be denied and that the case be 21 remanded to the state court based on the absence of complete diversity of citizenship.
